

Traditional Pathway for Incoming Sensory Stimuli

Sensory input is routed through the thalamus to the visual cortex, then to the neocortex for assessment and comparison and finally to the amygdala to set off an emotional response